

Politicians Just Don't Understand Young Adults

Melbourne, (DATE) - Research* conducted on behalf of Just Car Insurance has revealed that 94 per cent of young adults in Australia don't think politicians understand their issues.

The online survey of Australians aged between 18 and 25 years also revealed that 78 percent did not think that the government was doing a good job.

"At Just Car Insurance we specialize in providing insurance suited to young drivers. We know that if you don't understand the issues important to young adults you will not win customers, or votes" said Andrew O'Hara, National Manager of Just Car Insurance.

The protection of Australia is a significant concern for young adults. Four in five young people are proud to be Australian and a similar proportion think Australia is the best place in the world to live.

This patriotism is illustrated by the fact that the environment and terrorism topped the list of issues that most concerned young adults in the upcoming Federal election.

"Protecting what is important to you is only natural; whether it is your car, your life or your country." Says Andrew O'Hara

Just Car Insurance conducts regular national research, in order to gain insights into the attitudes, aspirations and experiences of young adults in Australia.
